INTRODUCTION :

The capital of a company is raised by issuing shares or debentures to the public. The share capital is the owned capital while Debenture Capital is the borrowed capital of a company.

Debenture is an acknowledgement of a debt. Debenture capital is a borrowed capital of a company. Debentureholder is a creditor of the company. Compared to equity shares Debenture is considered as safe and secured capital. Debentures are issued for a specific period and it carries fixed rate of interest as a return on investment in debentures.

The Secretary has to communicate the decisions of the management and other information to the Debentureholders by conducting correspondence. He should be very cautious and careful while corresponding with debentureholders of the company.

Certificate of Debenture should be issued within a period of 6 months from the date of allotment of debentures.

A Company cannot issue debentures to more than 500 people without appointing a Debenture Trustee.

7.1 PRECAUTIONS TO BE TAKEN BY THE SECRETARY WHILE CORRESPONDING WITH DEBENTUREHOLDERS :

The following precautions are to be kept in mind by the Secretary while corresponding with the debentureholders -

- 1. Politeness (Courtesy) : Being the creditors, due respect should be given to the debentureholder in secretarial correspondence. The tone of language in the letter should be courteous. Rude and harsh language should be strictly avoided.
- 2. Prompt Response : The Secretary should promptly reply and respond to the queries and complaints of the debentureholders without any delay.
- 3. Legal provisions : The Secretary should follow the statutory provisions of the Companies Act, 2013 and other relevant laws while corresponding with debentureholders. Secretary should be cautious and careful while corresponding with debentureholders on legal matters.
- 4. Transparency : To maintain greater transparency with debentureholders, it is necessary to disclose all correct and accurate information of the company, credit rating of the company, true and real facts of companies affairs, etc. in correspondence.

- 5. Conciseness : The letter to the debentureholders should be concise i.e. brief, short and to the point. Un-necessary and irrelevant information must be avoided.
- 6. Precise Information : The Secretary should provide precise and up to date information to the debentureholders. The information must be factual and true.
- 7. Secrecy : As a confidential officer of the company, secretary should not disclose any important and secret information related to the company while corresponding with debentureholders.
- 8. Image and Goodwill of the company : While corresponding with debentureholders, the Secretary should always try to maintain goodwill and create a good image of the company in the mind of debentureholders.

7.2 CIRCUMSTANCES UNDER WHICH A SECRETARY HAS TO ENTER INTO CORRESPONDENCE WITH DEBENTUREHOLDERS :

The following are the few circumstances under which the Secretary enters into correspondence with the debentureholders :

1. Informing the applicant about allotment of debentures.
2. Informing about Payment of Interest though :
 - a) Interest Warrant
 - b) Electronic Payment of Interest
3. Letter for conversion of debentures into equity shares.
4. Letter for redemption of debentures.

7.3 SPECIMEN LETTERS

- 1. Letter of Allotment of Debentures : When a company allots debentures to the applicant, Letter of allotment of debentures is sent to the debentureholders. This letter of allotment is to be preserved by the debentureholder as he gets Debenture Certificate in exchange of this letter.

This letter contains the details of issue of debentures i.e : Number of debentures applied for, Number of debentures allotted, Distinctive numbers of debentures, Amount received, Types of debentures, Rate of Interest, Maturity date, etc.
